WHAT would we do if there were not such good old-fashioned serious plays as "St. Elmo" to break the monotony of the whirlwind life of jazz that has us in its grip? Billy LaMance evidently never had the pleasure of seeing "St. Elmo" since his weeping denunciation of the theater would not include everything. We can not imagine a more wholesome story than that which closes with the ordination of St. Elmo and the redemption of Gordon Leigh, both of whom have according to the story strayed from the straight and narrow path, just as people do in real life. The power of a woman's love and prayer is the influence that is largely responsible for the change of heart in the two characters who occupy widely different positions in the world, and the interpretation of such a character could not have been placed with one more capable of handling it, than Mildred Jerome, the dainty little star who hopes, loves and has faith to the end. Myrtle Bidden in the part of Agnes, scheming for the love of St. Elmo and willing to plot away the happiness of Edna Earl to accomplish her end is constantly emphasizing her ability in roles that require dramatic expression. Both Mr. Casey and Mr. McDonald are unusually strong in their parts, much of the work falling to the latter as St. Elmo. Phil Maher the big, fine looking fellow as a villain is certainly capable in characters of this kind, and was at his best last night. The other members of the company were cast in minor roles which called for but little. The specialties went over good, as usual. Bill repeats tonight.

Same Bill at Dixie.

There is no change in the Dixie attraction today. "The Life Line" running again. The story carries with it a pleasing view of English life, and is decidedly interesting. A new Pathé review and a Mut and Jeff cartoon are also on the program there today.

Wm. S. Hart at Nelson.

William S. Hart is an all-the-way-through good man in "John Petticoats" Nelson's feature today. The main motive has the distinction of making its "first appearance" in this picture. Never before has a bashful and untaught son of the northwestern forests been left heir to a fashionable modiste shop in the gay city of New Orleans. This is what happens in "Hardwood" John Hart and he is greatly troubled to know what to do with his property. When he is notified by his uncle's lawyers of his new possession John doesn't know what it is like; so he goes to New Orleans to find out. Dressed in a gay colored lumberman's outfit, he arrives in the Carnival City and hunts up the shop. The display in the windows frightens him so that he is afraid to go inside. Judge Cady, Emerson Meredith is also gazing into the windows, but his feeling is solely one of regret—that he cannot afford to buy his granddaughter the graduation frock she wants.

John strikes up an acquaintance with the Judge and in a short time has become a boarder in the Meredith home by paying eight weeks board in advance, and little Miss Caroline gets her frock. The first sight of her finishes John. He buys so many clothes of the most stylish cut that he runs out of funds and is obliged to go to the store and draw money. Up to this time the plot has been an entirely humorous one, and is guaranteed to give the average spectator a large order of hearty laughs.

The betrayal of one of the shop girls by the man who is courting Caroline Meredith leads to her suicide. John leaps after her when she jumps off the pier and brings her ashore, but she dies from the shock. Wayne Page, the betrayer, makes it appear that Haynes is responsible for the girl's death, and Caroline dies with her grandfather when he orders the westerner from the house. The truth finally comes out and John gets the wife he wants. The serious side of the story is conventional, but it enables the star to put in his usual share of quiet but forceful acting and contrast it with his play as a creator of smiles. The New Orleans scenes were made in the city itself.

A Steel Magistrate Story.

Some excellent dramatic values are extracted from the five-part subject, "The Hand Invisible," presented by World Pictures at the Princess. It has been given splendid direction by Harry O. Hoyt and forges steadily ahead in an engrossing way, to a climax that is surprising and powerful. The plot itself is one of a rather old-fashioned type, but has certain modern touches that bring it up to later times.

The production is quite notable in the matter of presentation. Montague Love has never given the screen a finer performance than his portrayal of Rodney Graham, a financial king who follows the example of Napoleon and divorces his wife because she cannot give him an heir. Virginia Hammond makes much of the role of the first wife, Alice, bringing out the sweet submission of the character under cruel circumstances. Martha Mansfield as Katherine, the second wife, is also strong in her part, and Kate Lester is effective as Mrs. Dale. The minor characters are all pleasing and it is seldom that an entire cast plays with the even balance that is found in this subject.

ELLSWORTH SMITH SAYS NERVILAX IS A GOOD MEDICINE

Well Known Lumber Dealer
is Pleased With Excellent Medicine.

Ellsworth Smith, well known lumber dealer residing at the Newark, Ohio, Y. M. C. A., is a booster for Nervilax and says it is a good medicine. After trying all other remedies he was induced to purchase a bottle of Nervilax and is highly pleased with the excellent results obtained.

In a letter to the manufacturers of Nervilax, Mr. Smith sends the following: "For many years I have been a sufferer from stomach, liver, kidney and bowel trouble and have taken almost every kind of medicine without results. I suffered from headache, constipation, gas on my stomach, indigestion, was nervous and could not sleep at nights. After being told of Nervilax I purchased a bottle and am highly pleased with the results. I think Nervilax is a good medicine and I expect to continue the treatment."

Signed: ELLSWORTH SMITH, Newark, Ohio.

Nervilax is an excellent medicine for the kidneys, stomach, liver and bowels and acts directly on these organs. It is not a new medicine but has been on the market for the past three-quarters of a century. It is purely an herbal remedy and contains no opiates. Nervilax is on sale at the Crane Pharmacy, Fairmont, W. Va.

Death and Funeral.
Mrs. Edna May Richardson, aged 39 years, wife of George G. Richardson, died at her home here Friday morning from a three days' illness of diphtheria. Mrs. Richardson was the only child of Eugene and Sarah Alley, of Madison, New Hampshire. Her husband is foreman of the Burnett Monument works and came here a year ago from Sanford, Maine. Mrs. Richardson was a splendid woman and during her residence here had made many friends who were greatly shocked to hear of her death. She was a member of the Congregational church and Pythian Sisters lodge at her former home, and of the Woman's club of this place. She is survived by her father and mother, her husband and five children, Raymond, of Portland, Maine; Robert, Roland, Bernice and Vera Elizabeth, at home. Short funeral services were held on the lawn at her late home Monday at 2 o'clock conducted by Rev. I. S. Tyler, of the M. E. church, south, and interment was made in the I. O. O. F. cemetery by Undertaker Lazarus, of Mannington. Many and beautiful were the floral offerings, speaking in their silent way of the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

Diphtheria

A sore throat is a good breeding place for Diphtheria germs. Protect your children by never neglecting a Sore Throat. You can wisely depend upon TONSILINE. Give Tonsiline upon the first appearance of Sore Throat—don't give Diphtheria a chance in that throat in its weakened condition. When TONSILINE is swallowed it comes directly in contact with the diseased surface and induces a healthy condition of the membranes—then the system can better defend the throat if attacked by Diphtheria germs. Keep TONSILINE in the house where you can get it quick when needed. 50c., 60c. and $1.00.

The After Effects of Pneumonia

This is No. 2 of a series of advertisements, prepared by a competent physician, explaining how certain diseases which attack the air passages—such as Pneumonia, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Measles or even a long continued Cold—often leave these organs in an inflamed, congested state, thus affording a favorable foothold for invading germs. And how Vick's Vapo-Rub may be of value in this condition.

Pneumonia attacks the air cells of the lungs. An inflammation is set up and matter is thrown off which causes the air cells to solidify, thus preventing the natural flow of blood thru the lungs. This "backing up" of the blood causes the heart to pump harder, just as stepping on a hose increases the water pressure, which is the reason why, during this disease, the physician watches the overburdened heart so carefully.

After recovery the lungs are filled with a mass of wreckage—the debris of the battle—which must be gotten rid of by a process known as resolution. Frequently, inflamed spots remain, congestion persists, cough hangs on, and the least exposure brings on a cold that is hard to get rid of. If neglected, such damaged air passages may easily develop serious disease of the lungs.

Such cases should always continue under a physician's care and frequent examinations should be made to see that nature is properly continuing the rebuilding process.

Nightly applications of Vick's Vapo-Rub will aid nature in this work. Because Vicks acts locally by stimulation thru the skin to draw out the inflammation, attract the blood away from the congested spots and relieve the cough. In addition, the medicinal ingredients of Vicks are vaporized by the body heat. These vapors are breathed in all night long, thus bringing the medication to bear directly upon the inflamed areas.

Vicks should be rubbed in over the throat and chest until the skin is red—then spread on thickly and covered with hot flannel cloths. Leave the clothing loose around the neck and the bed clothes arranged in the form of a funnel so the vapors arising may be freely inhaled. If the cough is annoying, swallow a small bit of Vicks the size of a pea.

Samples to new users will be sent free on request to the Vick Chemical Company, 232 Broad Street, Greensboro, N. C.

The Quick Way to Stop a Cough
This home-made syrup does the work in a hurry. Easily prepared, and saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too. Children like it—and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. This you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly loosens the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for its healing effect on the membranes. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft.
